II. ISSUES TO BE DECIDED

a. Are Plaintiffs entitled to a finding that California is the proper venue for their claims against CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc.?

ANSWER: No.

b. Are Plaintiffs entitled to a finding that California law applies to the employment agreements signed by Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughroue with CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc.?

ANSWER: No.

III. STATEMENT OF FACTS

The following facts are basically undisputed: Plaintiffs Rich Bernier and Jay Sughroue are former employees of Defendant CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc., a Washington corporation. They were employed by CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc. under the terms and provisions of employment agreements containing non-competition and non-solicitation provisions. After resigning from CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc., Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughroue immediately became employed by Meras Engineering, Inc., a California corporation which operates as a same or similar type of business as does CH<sub>2</sub>O and which is in direct competition with CH<sub>2</sub>O. that plaintiff's business. Also on the very next day, Defendants Bernier and Sughroue and their new employer Meras Engineering filed a Complaint for Declaratory Relief and Unfair Competition in the US District Court, Northern District of California seeking a ruling that Defendants Bernier's and Sughroue's employment agreements with CH<sub>2</sub>O,

1 Inc, which contain non-competition and non-solicitation provisions, are void and 2 unenforceable under California law.

3 On February 2, 2011, CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc., filed an action in the Superior Court for the 4 State of Washington, County of Thurston, Cause No. 11-2-00323-7, involving the same 5 issues and parties as are involved in the present action (except for Meras Engineering, 6 Inc.). In essence, the Thurston County litigation sought to enforce the provisions of 7 Bernier's and Sughrue's employment agreements with CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc. Mr. Bernier and Mr.
8 Sughrue removed the Thurston County suit to the United States District Court, Western 9 District of Washington, under cause number 3:11-cv-05153-RJB based solely on 10 diversity jurisdiction.
11

12 Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughrue brought a motion in the Washington action to 13 dismiss, stay, or in the alternative to transfer venue to the U.S. District Court, Northern 14 District of California. By order dated April 18, 2011, U.S. District Court Judge Robert J.
15 Bryan denied the motion, holding that venue was proper in Washington, and Washington 16 law should apply regarding the non-competition and non-solicitation provisions.

1           a.       This Issue Has Already Been Addressed by the Washington Court:

2           Plaintiffs incorrectly argue that conflict of law provisions indicate that California 3 law should apply to the present matter. This issue has already been extensively briefed 4 and decided. Judge Bryan in the Washington U.S. District Court action issued a ruling on 5 April 18, 2011, with a thoughtful and detailed explanation of why Washington venue is 6 proper and Washington law controls. (Larson Decl., Ex. "A", Order). There is no reason 7 for this Court to rule differently at this point.

9           In his ruling, Judge Bryan analyzed the subject forum selection clauses under both 10 Washington and California law, and under both sets of laws he ruled that the Washington 11 forum selection clause was valid. (Order, pp. 7-8.) Thus, Washington courts (either state 12 or federal) are the appropriate venue where questions concerning Mr. Bernier's and Mr.
13 Sughrue's employment agreements should be litigated.
14

15           Regarding which state's law should apply, Judge Bryan pointed out that 16 Washington, like California, has adopted the Restatement 2nd of Conflict of Laws in 17 determining whether to apply the parties' selected governing laws. (Order, p. 12), and 18 under § 187(2)(b), certain requirements must be met before the parties' choice of 19 Washington law may be ignored. If one of these requirements is absent, then the choice 20 of Washington law must be enforced. The first question, whether Washington's law is 21 contrary to a fundamental policy of California, is clearly answered in the affirmative.

1 The next question, however, is whether California has a materially greater interest than 2 Washington in determination of the particular issue. Again, Judge Bryan specifically 3 addressed both Washington's interest in enforcing the non-compete agreement and 4 California's interest in voiding it. While the two states clearly have differing laws and 5 policies on this issue, Judge Bryan ruled that "it cannot be said that California's interests 6 materially outweigh those of Washington." (Order, pp. 15-16.) Because this 7 requirement was not met, the parties' choice of Washington law applies and is 8 enforceable.

10 Plaintiffs argue that in addition to Restatement 2nd § 187(2)(b), § 187(2)(a) also 11 applies, that is, Washington law should not apply because Washington has no substantial 12 relationship to the parties or the transaction and there is no other reasonable basis for the 13 parties' choice. While they did not make this argument in the Washington matter, 14 Plaintiffs here argue it as a bare assertion of fact. But Washington clearly has a 15 relationship to the parties. In fact, caselaw relied upon by Plaintiffs supports this 16 conclusion as to both prongs of this element.
 17

18 Plaintiffs use the analysis of Restatement 2nd discussed in Nedlloyd v. Seawinds 19 Ltd., 3 Cal.4th 459, 834 P.2d 1148 (1992). In Nedlloyd, plaintiff shipping company

1 places of business in the Netherlands. The contract provided that Hong Kong law would 2 apply. When a dispute arose, plaintiff brought suit in California. Defendants attempted 3 to enforce the Hong Kong choice of laws provision. The trial and appellate courts ruled 4 that California law applied. However, the California Supreme Court reversed, holding 5 that a party's incorporation in a state is a contact sufficient to allow the parties to choose 6 that state's law to govern their contract. If a corporate party resides in the chosen state, 7 the "substantial relationship" element is met. Nedlloyd, at 1153. Additionally, if one of 8 the parties resides in the chosen state, the parties also have a "reasonable basis" for their 9 choice. Id. While in Nedlloyd the plaintiff was also a Hong Kong corporation, the 10 holding did not turn on this. If even one of the parties resides in a state, then the 11 substantial relationship and the reasonable basis tests have been met. In the present 12 matter, CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc. is a Washington corporation and therefore its residence is 13 Washington. This clearly meets the requirement for enforcing the Washington law 14 provision.

17 Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughrue each voluntarily entered into the subject contracts 18 with CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc., and CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc. should be able to take them at their word when they 19 agreed to abide by the contract provisions. Otherwise, all anyone has to do to void non-20 competition terms of an employment contract is simply move to California. Contracts

1 should not be voidable simply because one moves to a different state. As the Washington 2 Supreme Court has pointed out,

3 Both California and Washington have interests in protecting the justifiable 4 expectations of the contracting parties. The Restatement, expounding on 5 core choice-of-law principles, explains that in applying section 187, 6 “protecting the justified expectations of the parties ... come[s] to the fore.” 7 Restatement, supra, § 6 cmt. c. “Generally speaking, it would be unfair and 8 improper to hold a person liable under the local law of one state when he 10 another state.” Id. cmt. g. Likewise, “[p]redictability and uniformity of 11 result are of particular importance in areas where the parties are likely to 12 give advance thought to the legal consequences of their transactions.” Id.

 13 cmt. i. Here, the justifiable expectations of Cotter and Erwin were 14 memorialized in the Agreement, a freely negotiated contract between two 15 highly experienced and successful business people who defined in advance 16 the terms of their business relationship and explicitly chose Washington 17 law to govern any disputes.

18 Erwin v. Cotter Health Ctrs., Inc., 161 Wn.2d 676, 699; 167 P.3d 1112, 1123 (2007).

19 As in the Erwin case, Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughrue each negotiated their 20 contracts and agreed to the forum and law selection clauses. They did not have to accept

(Larson Decl., Ex. "B", Employment Agreement, Addendum 1, signed 3/6/07.)

There are no grounds in the present matter to excuse Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughroue from their contractual obligations. Washington law, which enforces non-competition and non-solicitation provisions, applies here, and Plaintiffs' motion for partial summary judgment should be denied.

b. Google Case:

Plaintiffs spend some time discussing Google v. Microsoft, 415 F.Supp.2d 1018 (2005), and by extension, Brillhart v. Excess Ins. Co. of America, 316 U.S. 491 (1942). As they point out, there are similarities and differences between that case and the present matter. It should be noted that when the Washington action was first commenced, it was brought in state court, and it was only removed to U.S. District Court by Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughroue on the basis of diversity. Additionally, when the California action was first filed, it sought solely declaratory relief. The complaint was later amended to add claims for monetary damages, apparently for the purpose of avoiding the Brillhart analysis.

Despite Plaintiff's argument to the contrary, one thing the Google case does not say is that California has a materially greater interest in the subject of non-compete

 2 argument” that California’s interest exceeds Washington’s. Google, at 1023. Nowhere 3 does Google state that Washington (or any non-California state) does not have a 4 particular interest in non-competition clauses.

5 c. The Fact That Meras Engineering is a Party in the California Suit Should 6 Not Change the Result:

7 Plaintiffs also argue that because the new employer, Meras Engineering, is a party 8 in the California suit but not the Washington suit, the Washington forum and law 9 selection clauses may not be enforced. They cite to no caselaw to support this position.
 10 The truth is that Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughrue are bound by the terms of their respective 11 employment agreements with CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc. Meras hired them knowing full well that this 12 was the case, as shown by the fact that it filed suit to have the agreements declared void 13 the day it hired Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughrue. Meras should not be able to claim 14 damages for hiring employees it knew were not free to work for it.

15
 16 Plaintiffs may attempt to argue that because the California suit was filed first, it 17 should take precedence over the Washington Suit. It should be noted, though, that after 18 leaving CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc.’s employment, Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughrue started new jobs with 19 competitor Meras Engineering, Inc. the very next day. This indicates that that 20 employment with Meras had clearly been arranged prior to that time, while Mr. Bernier 21 and Mr. Sughrue were still employed by CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc. and owed it a duty of fair dealing

1 and loyalty. More outrageous, though, than starting employment with a competitor the 2 day after leaving CH<sub>2</sub>O's employment is that fact that on the very same day that Mr.
 3 Bernier and Mr. Sughroue commenced employment at Meras, Meras already had a 4 detailed complaint for declaratory relief completely drafted and ready to file in 5 California. There is no way that this complaint could be considered anything other than 6 anticipatory forum shopping, an attempt to have favorable California law apply.
 7 Plaintiffs knew that Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughroue were going to be in violation of their 8 agreements with CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc.; they knew that when CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc. learned of it, it would 9 bring suit pursuant to the Washington choice of laws and forum clauses; and they had 10 everything prepared so that they could beat them to the punch. This is exactly the type of 11 action meant to be excluded from the "first file" rule. The court can ignore the doctrine 12 when there has been improper motive in selecting a venue or jurisdiction:

11 The Google case, cited by Plaintiffs, references two cases where venue shopping 12 was not allowed. In DeFeo v. Procter & Gamble Co., 831 F. Supp. 776 (N.D. Cal.
 13 1993), DeFeo worked for Procter & Gamble in Ohio. His stock option plan included a 14 covenant not to compete. When DeFeo quit his job and accepted a job with Clorox in 15 California, Procter & Gamble told DeFeo that it would sue him. DeFeo filed a suit in 16 California state court, seeking a declaration that the covenant not to compete was 17 unenforceable. One day later, Procter & Gamble sought injunctive relief in Ohio state 18 court. Procter & Gamble removed the California case to federal court and then moved to 19 dismiss it under Brillhart. The court granted the motion, pointing out that forum 20 shopping should not be allowed:

 would be making needless decisions of state law, rewarding forum shopping, and engaging in duplicative litigation.

6 Likewise, in Schmitt v. JD Edwards World Solutions Co., Schmitt worked for JD 7 Edwards in Colorado. His employment agreement contained a covenant not to compete.
 8 Ariba, a California corporation, hired Schmitt. JD Edwards filed a breach of contract suit 9 against Schmitt in Colorado state court and Schmitt filed a request for declaratory relief 10 in California state court. Both cases were removed to federal court.

12 The California federal court granted JD Edwards' motion to 13 dismiss, noting that (1) "[i]t makes no sense for both courts to adjudicate 14 these cases" and (2) the timing of Schmitt's suit indicates that he "simply 19 This is not a case where the first-filed suit rule should apply, in light of the bad

1 Meras has joined Mr. Bernier and Mr. Sughrue in seeking to have the employment 2 agreements declared void, this should override validly negotiated contracts.

3 d. Plaintiffs are Not Entitled to Declaratory Relief or Judgment for Unfair
4 Competition:

5 Because Washington law applies and the non-competition and non-solicitation 6 provisions are enforceable, they are not void and CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc., is not in violation of Cal.
7 Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 by attempting to enforce void and unenforceable clauses.
8 Likewise there is no violation of § 17200, because there has been no unfair competition.
9 CH<sub>2</sub>O, Inc., has done nothing more than enforce its rights, as it is allowed to do under the 10 controlling Washington law. Plaintiffs' motion for partial summary judgment on these 11 issues should be denied.
